Reasons for grant of bail

He has proposed an address to stay at, with a friend [redacted] who has attended the hearing today and confirmed he is content for the applicant to live with him, and that he has offered the address because he and the applicant have been friends [redacted] and he wants to help. There is nothing before me to suggest the applicant would not be permitted to live with [redacted] at this address. This offers some mitigation against the risk of absconding, as the Respondent will know where the applicant is staying.

There is no requirement that I am aware of for this address to be approved by the probation service.

He has been detained since [redacted] and at present the Respondent estimates removal can take place in [redacted] This is of course only if the applicant's attempts to regularise his status here fail, and any appeals he makes are dismissed, neither of which are certain at this point.

If the applicant has to remain in detention until the conclusion of his immigration matters, he is looking at a very long period of detention.

Given the mitigations I identify above, and the bail conditions I may impose by way of further risk management, I am satisfied that in all the circumstances there is a reasonable alternative to detention today, and that is release on bail with an electronic monitoring condition.

Conditions of bail

The Tribunal grants immigration bail to the applicant subject to the following condition(s):

Electronic monitoring

Note: Where the Tribunal has directed that the Applicant should be subject to an electronic monitoring condition there may be a delay of release of up to 72 hours pending arrangements for the electronic monitoring device.

Bail is granted conditional upon:

the applicant being compliant with the fitting of an electronic monitoring device at the point of release from detention; and the Secretary of State promptly arranging the fitting of the electronic monitoring device at the place of the Applicant's detention. If the secretary of State does not complete the fitting of the electronic monitoring device within 72 hours then this grant of bail will commence and the applicant is to be released subject to the other conditions of this grant of bail. In such an event the Secretary of State will make arrangements for the fitting of the electronic monitoring device post release.

Applicant acknowledgement of conditions

I confirm that I have read and understood this bail decision and the bail conditions imposed.

Signed:_____ Date_____

Direction to transfer future management of bail

The Tribunal directs that on commencement of bail future management including any application for variation shall be exercised by the Secretary of State pursuant by paragraph 6(3) of Schedule 10 to the Immigration Act 2016.

Please note: Where the Tribunal directs that bail management shall be transferred to the Secretary of State, all future proceedings will be conducted by the Secretary of State (including any hearing to determine liability for payment of a financial condition).

I certify that I have granted immigration bail to the applicant subject to the conditions set out.
